1       AFFIRMED.

3       Gary Primo appeals from a judgment of conviction
4 entered on June 30, 2005 in the Eastern District of New York
5 (Sifton, J.) following a jury trial. Primo was convicted of 6 conspiring to distribute and possess with intent to 7 distribute cocaine base (in violation of 21 U.S.C. § 846)
8 and knowingly and intentionally distributing and possessing 9 with intent to distribute marijuana (in violation of 21 10 U.S.C. § 841) for his participation in a conspiracy to 11 distribute cocaine base and marijuana at a housing project
12 ("project"). Primo was sentenced principally to 41 months
13 in prison. We assume the parties' familiarity with the facts,
14 the procedural context, and the specification of appellate 15 issues.

17       1. We will reverse on an appellate challenge to the 18 sufficiency of the evidence "only if no rational factfinder
19 could have found the crimes charged proved beyond a 20 reasonable doubt." See United States v. Gaskin, 364 F.3d 21 438, 459-60 (2d Cir. 2004). "Once a conspiracy is shown to 22 exist, the evidence sufficient to link another defendant to 23 it need not be overwhelming." United States v. Amato, 15
24 F.3d 230, 235 (2d Cir. 1994) (internal quotations omitted).
25 "Conspiracy can be proven circumstantially; direct evidence
26 is not crucial." United States v. Mariani, 725 F.2d 862, 27 865 (2d Cir. 1984). Nevertheless, "evidence of purposeful 28 behavior designed to further a conspiracy must be shown to 29 prove membership in that conspiracy." United States v.
30 Chang An-Lo, 851 F.2d 547, 554 (2d Cir. 1988).

31
32       The evidence at trial showed that, on several 33 occasions, Primo--a marijuana dealer who never sold cocaine
34 base himself--facilitated cocaine base transactions between 35 an undercover officer (who did purchase marijuana from 36 Primo) and cocaine-base dealers at the project. Primo had 37 no economic interest in these transactions, but there was 38 evidence--mainly, the testimony of the head of the marijuana
39 conspiracy--that (i) the drug dealers at the project
40 operated according to an arrangement whereby marijuana
41 dealers referred their customers seeking cocaine base to 42 area cocaine-base dealers, who would in turn refer their 43 customers seeking marijuana to the marijuana dealers and 44 (ii) the purpose of this arrangement was to minimize

1 potentially injurious inter-dealer competition. Evidence of 2 such an agreement among drug dealers to create a peaceful 3 environment conducive to more efficient drug-dealing is 4 sufficient to establish the existence of a conspiracy. See
5 United States v. DeSimone, 119 F.3d 217, 223 (2d Cir. 1997)
6 ("In order prove a conspiracy, the government must show that 7 two or more persons agreed to participate in a joint venture
8 intended to commit an unlawful act."). The evidence was 9 also sufficient for the jury to conclude that Primo--who was 10 undoubtedly associated with the marijuana dealers at the 11 project--actively facilitated cocaine-base transactions in 12 an effort to further the common goals of the overall
13 conspiracy.
14

15 2. Motions challenging "defects in the indictment"
16 must be made prior to trial. Fed. R. Crim. P. 12(b)(3). "A 17 party waives any Rule 12(b)(3) defense, objection, or 18 request not raised by the deadline the court sets under Rule
19 12(c)", although "the court may grant relief from the waiver
20 . . . for good cause." Fed. R. Crim. P. 12(e). Primo filed 21 a motion seeking a bill of particulars; but he withdrew that 22 motion upon receiving the Government's discovery. Neither
23 Primo nor his defense attorney attended the July 8, 2004
24 hearing on pretrial motions, at which Primo now claims he 25 made his motion to dismiss.<sup>1</sup> Primo thus has waived his 26 objections, see United States v. Viserto, 596 F.2d 531, 538
27 (2d Cir. 1979), and we decline to excuse the waiver.
28

29 3. "[W]hile we review a sentence for reasonableness,
30 that review involves consideration not only of the sentence 31 itself, but also of the procedure employed in arriving at 32 the sentence." United States v. Fernandez, 443 F.3d 19, 26
33 (2d Cir. 2006). The district court's procedures were proper 34 for the following reasons:
35

- 36 (i) "[D]istrict courts may find facts relevant to 37 sentencing by a preponderance of the evidence, 38 even where the jury acquitted the defendant of 39 that conduct, as long as the judge does not impose
40 (1) a sentence in the belief that the Guidelines

<sup>1</sup>While a motion to dismiss on the indictment was made by a co-defendant, Primo did not join in the motion.

1 are mandatory, (2) a sentence that exceeds the 2 statutory maximum authorized by the jury verdict,
3 or (3) a mandatory minimum sentence under § 841(b)
4 not authorized by the verdict." See United States
5 v. Vaughn, 430 F.3d 518, 527 (2d Cir. 2005). All
6 of the Vaughn requirements were satisfied here.
7 In particular, Section 841(b)(1)(C) sets a 8 statutory maximum of 20 years (and no minimum) for 9 distribution of unspecified amounts of cocaine
10 base, and § 841(b)(1)(D) sets a statutory maximum 11 of five years for distribution of less than 50 kg
12 of marijuana. Since Primo was sentenced to two 13 concurrent terms of 41 months, both sentences are 14 less than the statutory maximum, and hence proper
15 under Vaughn. Moreover, the district court's 16 finding that the conspiracy was responsible for 17 the distribution of between 50 and 100 grams of 18 cocaine base was well supported. Therefore, the 19 district court's deviation from the jury verdict
20 was not error.

21
22 (ii) In imposing sentence, district courts may 23 consider hearsay evidence that is reliable. See 24 United States v. Martinez, 413 F.3d 239, 244 (2d 25 Cir. 2005). This standard was met here because 26 all of the hearsay evidence considered by the 27 district court was supplied in the course of 28 judicial proceedings in which (either) interested 29 parties had the opportunity to cross-examine the 30 declarants or the declarants themselves were under 31 oath.

32
33 (iii) The sentence imposed by the district court--
34 one level below that indicated by the sentencing 35 guidelines--was undoubtedly reasonable, even in 36 light of the potentially mitigating circumstances
37 presented by Primo. See Fernandez, 443 F.3d at 38 27-28.

39
40 For these reasons, the judgment of the district court is 41 AFFIRMED as to Primo. Counsel for Appellants Shawn McFarlane
42 and Davilar have filed briefs pursuant to Anders v.
43 California, 386 U.S. 738 (1967), and the government has moved 44 for summary affirmance; those motions are hereby GRANTED.
